

PRESENTATION

It is an honor for me to collaborate on this important work co-edited by the University of Arizona College of Law and the Institute of Legal Research of the National Autonomous University of Mexico.

The James E. Rogers College of Law is actively committed to establishing and solidifying close ties with prestigious legal institutions, such as the Legal Library “Dr. Jorge Carpizo”, directed by Dr. Federico Hernández Pacheco, an outstanding specialist in library science, information sciences and human resources, and coordinator of this work.

On its own, our Daniel F. Cracchiolo Law Library, under the exemplary command of its Director and Associate Dean of Innovation and Legal Information, Teresa Miguel-Stearns, continues to play a leadership role in the areas of legal information, access to justice, indigenous peoples, international law, both public and private, among others.

The works compiled in this volume offer an important framework to crucial changes that are taking place throughout the Americas. In addition, it provides the opportunity to share ideas, experiences, and lessons learned, as we continue to experience the onslaught of the COVID-19 pandemic in our institutions.

Therefore, this compendium is one of the many examples of significant and successful collaboration with the Institute of Legal Research of the National Autonomous University of Mexico.

I have no doubt that this issue will further expand the professional ties that unite us.
